Canada's New Loan

The Hon. W. S. Fielding, minister of finance, is appealing to the country in October or November, for a new Canadian loan. We have grown accustomed to appeals for money running into hundreds of millions, and the surprise has been the ease with which we have been able to dig it up. Our present needs are $50,000,000. At least $100,000 has been raised in New York. With treasury bills outstanding amounting to $140,000,000 and loans maturing on December 1, $132,000,000, we need to raise for immediate purposes the sum of $225,000,000. This seems quite possible. While business is conservative and booms seem unlikely for the present, we are surely on the up grade. Business last week was $13,000,000 better than the same month a year ago, and what is better a new hopefulness, optimism and sense of security has pervaded the country which is good to see. Providence has blessed Canada with almost mythical power from coast to coast. And now, by all pulling, and all pulling all the time and all pulling together, we shall surely arrive at the haven of industrial prosperity.—Guardian.

Travel to National Parks

This season's travel to the Canadian National Parks seems likely to be one of the heaviest in their history. Reservations in many of the hotels have been booked months in advance and the chief resorts are now full of foreign and Canadian visitors. The Jasper Park Lodge, the new bungalow hotel which was opened for the first time on June 15, at Jasper, will make it possible for many more tourists to find accommodation in the best reservation west of Edmonton and a noticeable increase both there and at Banff in the number of people who come to spend the entire summer and go out along the trails to the beautiful but little known portions of the Parks is observed. The total number of visitors to the Canadian National Parks during the past season was approximately 120,000, of whom came from outside countries. It is estimated that this travel represents approximately $18,000,000 foreign money brought into the country for which Canada sent out practically nothing in return. The total expenditures of the National Parks during the past twenty-five years have been a little over $4,000,000 or about one-third the value of foreign travel they attracted last year.

Why Is It—

We wondered why it is that a smooth tongued individual with a flashy front end comes into Wetaskiwin and sells a lot of stuff that usually can be purchased at any of our stores, pocket the money and get out of town with good grace, while a fellow residing here would starve to death in a week. We have noticed too that not only are many of our people more inclined to trade with a stranger than with a neighbor. We also have noticed that we have never been able to figure it out, and have wondered why some people can't refuse a stranger's plea for an order, yet can turn around and tell someone who lives here and who is also trying to make a living that they don't care to buy. Agents come and agents go, and they always take more money out of town than they leave in it. Yet they always seem to be a welcome for them at the homes of people, well meaning people, too, who have not learned to say "no" to a stranger. We can't understand it, much less explain it.

And merchants themselves seem to be afflicted with the same trouble, for too often the travelling agent is given an order for sales books, form books, office supplies or something that he represents to be a little out of the ordinary, that could just as well be supplied by the local firm and the money kept at home. And whenever the printer sees such foreign printing matter, he wonders if his efforts to boost the community year in and year out are really appreciated.

A Park Avenue apartment house which goes in for funkiness recently blossomed out with a new wonder. When a gentleman called and asked to see Mrs. Brown, the new attendant to his calling, detained him with the customary "That is a stranger, I'm not seeing you." The caller, with a glance, "My good man," he said, "Mrs. Brown was expecting me before I was born. She is my mother."

An old dorky got up one night at revival meeting and said: "Brothers and sisters, you know we'll never die. I ain't been what I oughter been, I've robbed hundreds of stole hags and stole lies, an' got drunk, an' I ain't no folks w' can razor, an' I ain't no folks w' can razor, but I think the Lord der's one thing I ain't religion; I ain't never but sin'n religion."

BY THE ROADSIDE

By W. R. Rose

A long gray car was drawn up at the side of the country road. It was a house car, a home on wheels, and its gray old owner was staring absently into the open hood. He was a man of medium height, 50 perhaps, inclined to be bald, with a high, bald, bushy eyebrows man, with a strong square face and very keen eyes.

The keen gray eyes suddenly turned from the engine and looked up the road. A sleek, black, topless sportsman, an odd looking car with closed curtains that came forward at a dignified pace and halted.

The driver, a bareheaded young man leaped from the steering wheel.

"Any assistance desired?" he asked.

"Plenty," growled the gray man. He had a quick explosive way of talking that at first startled the young man.

"Know anything about cars?"

"Something."

"Mind you," growled the gray man, "I don't want any complications."

The young man laughed.

"I don't know what your business is," he said as he came forward, "but I guess you'll admit we all are experimenters, more or less."

"That's a mighty good job," said the gray man. "You don't know me, do you?"

"I haven't the pleasure."

"It isn't a pleasure. What's the matter with the car?"

"Give me this," replied the young man. "The diagnosis has failed."

A moment later he straightened up. "Right as a trivet," he said, and rolled up the tools. The gray man watched him keenly.

"What have you got in that car?"

"A friend."

"Invalid, perhaps?"

"Yes."

"It interests me. I'll take a look at your friend."

"None of that," said the young man. "I won't have her annoyed."

But the gray man paid no attention to his protest. He pulled aside the curtain of the car and a white face with deep black eyes confronted him.

They were the black eyes of a young woman who was lying in a hammock that was at once hammock and cot.

It was hung by straps from a steel frame, and it swung with an easy motion that counteracted and jolting the road might give the car.

"Hello!" the gray man said. "Not afraid of a strange face."

"Not of yours," said the girl. "Is Kirk there?"

"He's close by. Brother?"

"No—just a friend. He built this car for me."

"He did? It's a pretty hard looking car."

"It's a beautiful car."

"So it is, my dear, so it is. It all depends upon the point of view. He built it for your pleasure, did he? I'll say it's a beautiful car."

He had taken one of the girl's hands and was holding it close. And then the voice of the young man broke in upon them.

"Don't let him annoy you, Elva."

"He doesn't annoy me, Kirk. I like him."

"There you are young man! Run along and amuse yourself. I've got something confidential to say to this young woman. Scoot!"

The young man drew back reluctantly and stood waiting.

"You mustn't hurt Kirk's feelings," said the girl. "He's the dearest, kindest friend in the world. He gave up his hopes of the law so he could be near me. We have known each other since we were children and—I think we would have been married if it had not been for my fault. Some steps broke and I fell."

"Yes."

"How long ago?"

"Six years."

"How's the neck?"

"All right. I have no trouble in moving my head."

"Good!" Still holding fast to her hand, he ran his other hand under her head and gently lifted it from the pillow. He lifted it a little higher and presently she winced. "Exactly," he said, and laid her back again. "What has been done for it?"

"Plaster jacket, steel braces, canvas waist—they all hurt me. I gave them up."

"Good again!" He stood there looking at her for a moment, and then his eyes meeting hers, smiled in an odd way, and she smiled in return. "You are a fine young woman, my dear. You don't ask any questions."

"If you suffer, get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day. Don't let pain spoil the last year of your life."

distance from the road. She saw the signal and hurried down the lane.

She was an elderly woman with a kindly face, and the gray man shot a quick glance at her.

"You'll do," he said and pulled off his coat and vest and laid them over the seat of his car. Then he rolled up his sleeves very carefully and drew a flat leather case from the car.

"Come!" he said to the woman.

"One moment," said the young man. "I'm a pretty patient fellow, but I have my limits. I don't know what you are doing. I only know that I have charge for the time being, anyway, of this woman, my car, and it's time, I think, to assert my guardianship."

"Pretty well phrased," growled the gray man. "But you mustn't irritate me. I'm supposed to be on my vacation. Sit down and behave yourself and don't you dare come until you are called. If you are so anxious to know my name, there is a card in the side pocket of my coat. Help your self."

Then the gray man and the woman disappeared on the opposite side of the car, and the young man, sitting on the running board of the house car, waited for what seemed a painfully long time. Once he was sure he heard the girl cry out and arose hurriedly, but hearing no more, resumed his seat.

Then the gray man came, busy with rolling down his sleeves, followed by the woman. The woman was crying and the young man started up in alarm.

"There, there," said the stranger. "It's all right. My friend there is just a little hysterical."

The stranger seated himself beside the young man, as he rebuked his cuffs. "Some car that. Make it all yourself."

"I put it together. It's a composite of half a dozen cars." He looked at the gray man eagerly. "What—what happened?"

The gray man put on his vest and coat.

"Did you find my car?"

"No. I don't like to meddle with your pockets."

"Rather flunky for a lawyer. But that's all right. I'll tell you what happened. That protege of yours is suffering from a misplaced ligament and a slight dislocation. The case hasn't been understood. Or, rather, it been badly misunderstood. Wonderfully nice girl. Took to me at once, you know. Stood up to the rack like a Christian martyr. Never let me see a stranger but once. Well, I've a new Delon giggle on it—it compresses and supports. She's sitting up in the car there getting her breath back. Yes, sitting up. She can stand a little of it. And now pay attention. Her harness is very gradually pushing things back into place, and day after tomorrow at 10 o'clock you and Elva and the nondescript car will come to the hospital. Your case is attracting quite a little attention, Miss. See the flowers the boarders have sent you."

Presently the young man went down the broad staircase and emerged onto the porch, and there he found quite a number of men staring at his car. One of them came forward, a tall, white-necked man, who said to the gray man, "What's the matter with the car?"

He was Col. Jim Edwards, and added that Kirk was the man the surgeon had mentioned to him. He suggested a ride round the oval.

"You understand it was built for a purpose," said Kirk as they started.

"I understand the purpose," replied the colonel.

"It is a masterpiece of easy riding, for the same purpose. It starts without any jar and it stops in the same way."

The colonel turned his keen gaze from the interior of the car.

"I want you," he said. "I happen to be the designer, promoter and owner of the Standish car. We need you on the staff. We want your ideas. I'm ready to start you at this figure" and he scribbled an amount on a card, and handed it to the young man. The latter gave a little gasp as he stared at it. He could only nod his approval.

"As soon as Elva is out of danger" he said.

"There isn't any danger about it," declared the colonel. "Hartman told me the way, where did you meet him?"

"By the roadside," said the young man.

"A week ago my lady boy, just one year and four months old, started out with me and bleeding, and when he could not eat or sleep, and had the diarrhoea so terribly bad, his rooming and nursing to send for a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's', and on the following Tuesday he was out in the field again as fit as ever."

"Oh, Kirk, see this! I'm sitting up and I'm sure I never felt so comfortable in all my life. Who is that wonderful man?"

The young man gave a short laugh. "That wonderful man happens to be nobody but Dr. Philip Hartman."

"Dr. Hartman?" Not the one who cured little Doris Richardson?"

"The same one."

The girl stared at him.

"Why, Kirk," she cried, "we are ruined!"

Then the young man laughed until he was obliged to sit on the running board to get his breath.

"Marvellous things happen by the roadside," he said. "This is one of them."

"Goodly youngsters," roared a big voice. The house car was getting under way.

"Goodbye," shrieked the girl. "Goodbye!"

by," shouted the young man, and the car rolled on.

At exactly ten o'clock on the eventful morning the nondescript car rolled up the slight incline that led to the broad landing porch of Swevair sanatorium. The young man noticed that there were a number of summary ladies and tennys men on the porch who suddenly became very quiet and seemingly very interested. He noted too, that there was a big broad armchair close at hand with a pillow at the back, and in this, Kirk, with his white face, placed the white faced girl. They were a grey uniformed man and the two men carried the invalid up the broad staircase and along a hall and into a beautiful room that was made more attractive by a wonderful profusion of flowers.

There was a white-garbed nurse who came forward and received the girl.

"The doctor was called to the city," she said. "He will bring back with him two of the big surgeons from the Street Hospital. Your case is attracting quite a little attention, Miss. See the flowers the boarders have sent you."

For The Common Good

It is always a source of pleasure to right minded people to see the young folk enjoy themselves, and most people are ready to encourage them in their youthful joys, unless it means some breach of the moral law, or the law of the land.

Automobiles have become so common for business and for pleasure that we are possibly in danger of neglecting to take proper precautions concerning them. "Let us forget" our provincial government has thoughtfully given us a few reminders along this line:

"No male person under sixteen years of age, and no female person under 18 years of age, shall drive or operate a motor vehicle upon any public street, highway, road, park or driveway."

"No intoxicated person shall drive or operate a motor vehicle in any place."

"No person shall drive a motor vehicle upon any public highway in a race or on a bet or wager."

"There are other rules also. And any person violating any of the provisions of this act, or of any regulations made thereunder, shall be liable—"

1. For a first offence, to a penalty of twenty dollars and costs.

2. For a second offence, not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars and costs.

3. For a third or subsequent offence not less than fifty or more than one hundred dollars and costs and to imprisonment for a term of not less than one week or more than one month."

How the Udder of a valuable cow was saved

Chas. K. Robbins, of Chazy, Maine, writes—

"A recent experience, in which what was supposed to be a lost udder of a valuable cow's udder was saved, stands again the great work of Minard's Liniment."

"For years I have never considered my household stock complete without a bottle of Minard's. For years, indeed, I have been a devotee of the great work of Minard's Liniment."

"I am glad to say that among all the most valuable things I have ever owned, there is no better remedy for a sore udder."

How To Cook a Husband

A good many husbands are utterly spoiled by mismanagement. Some women keep them constantly in hot water, others let them freeze by carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and words; others roast them. Some keep them in a pickle all their lives.

It cannot be supposed that any husband will be tender and good managed in this way, but they are really delicious when properly treated.

In selecting your husband you should not be guided by a silvery appearance as in buying mackerel, nor by the golden tint you so much esteem in salmon.

Be sure you select him yourself as tastes differ. Do not go to market for him as the best are always brought to your door. It is far better to have none unless you will patiently learn how to cook him.

A preserving bottle of the finest porcelain is best, but if you have nothing better than an earthenware pickle that will do with care. See that the linen in which you wrap him is nicely washed and mended with the required number of buttons and strings sewed on.

Put him in the kettle by a strong silk cord called comfort, as the one called duty is apt to be weak and they are apt to fly out of the kettle and be burned and crusty on the edges, since like crabs and lobsters you have to cook them alive.

Make a clear steady fire out of love, cheerfulness and neatness. Set him as near to this as seems to agree with him. If he sputters and fizzes do not be anxious, some husbands do this until they are quite done.

Add a little vinegar in the form of what the confectioners call kisses but no vinegar or pepper on any account. A little spice improves them but it must be used with judgment. Do not add any sharp instrument into him to see if he is becoming tender. Stir him gently the while lest he lie too flat and too close to the kettle and so become useless. You cannot fail to know when he is done.

KEEP ON GOING

One step won't take you very far. You've got to keep on walking. One word won't tell folks who you are. You've got to keep on talking. One inch won't make you very tall. You've got to keep on growing. One little ad. won't do it all. You've got to keep them going.

Meet me on the Midway at the Fair.

The same gland, correspondingly, is found in other animals. It can be obtained from the sheep; and, inasmuch as sheep are being slaughtered in great numbers all the time, the material is easily to be had in any quantity. The glands, dried, ground to a fine powder, and sterilized, can be fed to animals, or, if it shall be deemed expedient, to young children.

It is intended next to make experiments with puppies, if, as is thought likely, they can be caused to grow faster and bigger by feeding them with the plenary substance, the presumption is that the same would be true of children. A dog's physiological reactions are in all ways much like those of human beings; for which reason it is that medical science tries out every new idea on a dog. In this case, it will be easy enough to determine the question by taking a litter of puppies, giving two or three of them plenty of milk and dog biscuits, and feeding the others on plenary gland stuff. If these fed on the latter material grow more rapidly and attain greater size, it will be inferable that the same treatment would produce corresponding results with boys and girls. With the puppies, of course, of other animals, there would have to be a series of experiments to test this with certainty the fact.

More Terrible Machines Than in Late War Being Built, Says Lloyd George

London, Aug. 30.—"More terrible than those used in the late war are being constructed," said Premier Lloyd George, at a luncheon given by 300 prominent Free Church men on Friday.

"What for? To attack the cities and maim, destroy and burn helpless women and children. Keep your eye on what is happening. If the churches of Europe and the United States allow that they had better close their doors."

"We reduced our armaments, and if other nations follow that example there will be no serious menace to peace. But it is difficult for a nation to remain defenceless while others are preparing for war."

Mr. Lloyd George said that the next war, if it came, would be a war on civilization itself. Speaking of the suddenness in which war came, he said:

"The war torn is like any other germ. You do not know what it is until it has got you. It is of an unarguing with an epidemic when the fit is on him. There is that atmosphere in the world now, and the explosive material is scattered over the face of Europe."

"When the match is dropped it is too late to ward the covenant of the league of nations. It is the new spirit that is wanted. Look up the peoples and especially look up those given to dropping matches. The churches must promote the new spirit which is necessary."

The prime minister said that he attached high hopes to the league of nations. He said that civilization would be safe if the league succeeded. If it failed, civilization was doomed.

"I have seen the sorrows of war, and they made me vow to concentrate my remaining energy to making it impossible for humanity again to pass through that fire, the torch, the crucifix, the horror and the squalor of war," declared the premier.

Regarding the drink question, he said that there had been more drink legislation put through parliament in the past two years than during the previous half century.

Entries for the Fair must be in by Saturday, August 12.

SEVERE HEADACHES

PAINS IN THE BACK AND STOMACH

Once the liver fails to filter the poisons hide from the blood, there is a dragging up and poisoning of the whole system which causes many troubles to ensue. The liver becomes congested, the stomach upset, bilious attacks occur causing severe headaches, pains and aches come on, and a general feeling of depression sets in.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will help the liver to resume its proper functions by removing the bile that is circulating in the blood and poisoning the system. Mrs. S. R. Hallett, Herring Cove, N. S., writes:—"I have been troubled for a long time with severe headaches and pains in my back and stomach. I went to a doctor who said I had liver trouble. I took two bottles of medicine, but it failed to do me any good. I was told by a friend to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I took two vials, and they have made me well."

Price 5c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The E. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Red Cross Hospital Is Doing Excellent Work

The Junior Red Cross hospital for sick children in Calgary is at present filled to capacity with thirty-seven patients. These little ones represent all parts of the province, two having arrived from the far north, while several have come in from the south.

Two had cases have come from Athabasca Landing, one being a lad of fourteen who has never walked in his life, due to infantile paralysis contracted when an infant. His brother has a tubercular leg. Both these boys will be operated on this week, and the doctors are hopeful that in each case they will be able to do a great deal for them.

An interesting case is that of a little girl who has never been able to walk owing to malformation of the muscles, but who can now get long unaided, thanks to a recent operation, and she is naturally very proud of the fact.

Many of the bed patients are lying in plaster casts, yet in every case there is confident hope that a permanent cure will take place.

Three of the patients have gone home this month, and they are entirely cured. In this new children's hospital there is an air of happiness and optimism everywhere for the children are filled with hope and encouragement when they see the results of operations on their companions, many of whom are progressing quite marvelously.

ALL ORIENTALS MAY BE OUSTED FROM B.C. MILLS

Victoria, Aug. 6.—Steps to have all Orientals ousted from the pulp and paper mills of British Columbia were taken today by Hon. A. M. Manson, attorney general and minister of labor.

Nearly 1,000 Orientals, a large proportion of them Japanese, are employed in the industry. Mr. Manson proposes that their places be taken by white men, many of whom have large families, and are either out of work altogether or are employed on less profitable jobs.

The pulp and paper mills at Powell River, already have displaced all Orientals and are operating on white labor only.

Mr. Manson has taken up direct with the other pulp and paper mill owners the question of replacing Orientals. "I am satisfied that can be eliminated," he said in his message to the managers.

A party of about 150 newspapermen representing the daily and weekly papers that belong to the South Dakota Daily and Weekly Press association will visit Winnipeg August 17. They are visiting the Canadian west on the invitation of the Dominion government, and they have undertaken to supply a great deal of publicity for the department of colonization.

CATTLE RAISERS ARE ASSURED OF FEDERAL SUPPORT

Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, gave stockmen the assurance on Thursday morning, while in the city, that the federal government was very greatly interested in the cattle industry. The government realized, he said, that this was of prime importance, and that something must be done to keep the young stocker cattle in the country.

The stockmen that waited upon the minister were representatives of the Stock Growers' Protective Association of Western Canada, together with a delegate from the Saskatchewan association. The object was to impress upon the minister the serious position now confronting the live stock men in connection with finding a market for their feeder cattle.

J. M. Dillon, in addressing the minister, pointed out the many benefits that the American farmer would derive by the free admission of Canadian feeder cattle to the United States and that the United States market at the present time appeared to be the only market which would tend to save the industry.

Mr. Dillon also pointed out that many of the largest buyers for American companies were now, and had been in Canada, buying up young cattle, and that if some assistance were not obtained in the way of a market for grass finished cattle, the young stocker cattle would have to be sold and the industry ruined. This, he said, the country could not afford to allow as the cattle industry was one of the basic industries of Canada, being the second most important industry in Alberta.

Mr. Stewart, in his reply, after referring to the importance of the cattle industry, said the dominion government had been using every effort in an endeavor to further the free export of feeder cattle into the United States, and they had asked for the free entrance of feeders in the belief that a trade agreement could be arrived at between the two countries.

In opening the meeting, A. E. Cross, on behalf of the stock associations of the three western provinces, expressed the enthusiasm of stockmen through the west for the keen and sympathetic interest the minister had shown in the difficulties with which stockmen were confronted as a result of the conditions obtaining in the industry during the past few years.

Before leaving, Mr. Stewart reiterated his assurance that the government would do all it could to assist stockmen in the direction indicated.

A young minister of the country, noted for his jollity, was dining at a farm house one Sunday, and when his plate of roast chicken was passed to him, he remarked facetiously, "Well, here's where that chicken enters the ministry." "Hope it does better there than it did in my work," rejoined the bright boy of the family.

Hong Kong, Aug. 7.—Five thousand lives are believed to have been lost in the typhoon which last Wednesday devastated Swatow, 250 miles northwest of here. Wednesday night's typhoon at Swatow, was the worst in the history of that city. Dead bodies are floating amid the wreckage everywhere in the harbor. Nearly every home in the city was damaged. heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting as I used to get so short of breath. I spent hundreds of dollars on doctors, but they could do nothing for me. Friends told me to try Milburn's

DEVELOP A RACE OF
GIANTS OR PIGMIES

Can a boy or girl be made to grow faster and taller and better developed physically by means outside the ordinary course of nature?

A new and very remarkable discovery strongly suggests that this may be possible. It is described by Dr.
the master M. Allen, professor of zoology in the University of Kansas, who to illustrate the theory, mentions some recent experiments of his own with salamanders.

He found it practicable to produce these reptiles of enormous size—giants in fact. He thinks that perhaps the rate of growth and the stature of children could be greatly augmented by the same treatment.

In one experiment, two salamanders were chosen from one litter. They were therefore of the same age, as well as the same parentage. The conditions under which they were kept were exactly the same. But one of them was fed on earthworms, while the other was fed on something else.
The earthworm fed salamander grew to normal size. The one fed on something else grew twice as big. Speaking exactly, it weighed 56 per cent greater than that of its brother. It was a giant of its species—a salamander of the like of which for bigness was never before seen.

It was almost a miracle. But the explanation is simply that the something else fed to the freak salamander was the ground up substance of the "pituitary gland" obtained from sheep.

It has long been known that this gland has importantly to do with growth in human beings, and in the lower animals. If in a child it be underdeveloped, the youngster will not grow up, or he may be a dwarf. If it be diseased, the person will be able to become a giant.

What happens apparently in the lactation is simply that the disease which produces its peculiar secretion (which is growth making stuff) in abnormal quantities. But later on it becomes functionally weak to such an extent that the rate of secretion becomes unusually small, and the sufferer, progressively emaciated, dies. Giants never live long.

If a human shall be emaciated, there will be found near the middle of the bottom of it a small cavity into which the end of a finger may be thrust. This cavity during the lifetime of the individual, is occupied by the pituitary body, a bit of structure, half gland and half nerve stuff, about which science knows nothing virtually, except that it influences growth. Together with the rest of the gland (in the throat) the two cooperating in some mysterious way, it governs growth and control.

The same gland, correspondingly situated, is found in other animals. It can be obtained from the sheep; and inasmuch as sheep are being slaughtered in great numbers all the time, the material is easily to be had in the hundreds of thousands of pounds.

The glands, dried, ground, ground to a fine powder, and sterilized, can be fed to animals, or, if it shall be deemed expedient, to young children.

It is intended next to make experiments with puppies. If, as is thought likely, they can be caused to grow faster and larger by feeding them with the pituitary substance, the presumption is that the same would be true of children. A dog's physiological reactions are in all ways much like those of human beings, for which reason it is that medical science tries out every new idea on a dog. In this case, it may be easily enough to determine the question by taking a few puppies, giving two or three of them plenty of milk and dog biscuits, and feeding the others on pituitary gland stuff. If these fed on the latter material grow more rapidly and attain greater size, it will be inferable that the same treatment would produce corresponding results with boys and girls.

With the puppies, of course, or with other animals, there would have to be a series of experiments to determine with certainty the fact.

Parents want their children to grow big. They are ambitious for tall sons and stout daughters. Perhaps this wish of theirs can be accomplished by feeding them in their early years with pituitary substances. Suppose that six inches could be added to a boy's ultimate stature with a corresponding number of extra inches around the chest by giving him a tablet of gland stuff with each meal. Would not that be worth the while?

Even more important it would be to give such treatment to children who are underdeveloped or underdeveloped.
They might be made to gain stature rapidly and to achieve a healthy body hood or girlhood. Viewing the possibilities in the "large" what a prospect for the physical improvement of the human race is this new discovery!

Says Prof. Allen: "The experiments already made give hope that we may in this way be able to stimulate size growth—to augment growth and modify development in human beings.
The studies that dwarfs are persons who, by reason of underdevelopment of the pituitary gland, fail to become physically mature. Though mentally normal, their bodily proportions remain stunted."

In the light of this new knowledge the curious interest that has always attended these little people obtains a new significance.

The first dwarf to be widely exhibited in this country was the famous Tom Thumb. As a pigmy, he would attract little attention nowadays. His height being thirty-four inches. He

FATHER OF TELEPHONE

HOW THE LATE ALEXANDER GRA-HAM BELL TALKED OVER A WIRE FIFTY YEARS AGO.

The telephone was not the only invention of Alexander Graham Bell, whose death has now removed one of the most important and interesting figures in the field of mechanical science. It is safe to say that it is the invention by which he will be longest and chiefly remembered. And Canada may fairly enough claim to be to the home of the telephone, because the greater part of the experimenting that brought it into existence was done on Canadian soil.

Dr. Bell was twenty-three years of age when he first came to Canada from Edinburgh, and two years later he went to Boston as professor of vocal physiology in Boston university.
His vacations were spent largely at his father's home at Brantford, Ont.

It was there that he did his experimental work with the tele-phone. While still in Scotland and teaching school, though not yet out of his teens he devoted a great deal of his time and attention to questions of voice and sound production, and thus he came to make the discovery that the resonance of the mouth cavity varies in making different vowel sounds. He found later that Homboltz had made the discovery before him. Bell received the mistaken idea that Homboltz had been able to transmit vowel sounds by electricity. Now he knew nothing at the time of electricity, but he asked himself why, if vowel sounds could be transmitted in this way, although could not be transmitted also.

It was his idea, as it happened, had done nothing of the kind, yet it was by working on this false idea that, after considerable patient work, the first telephone was evolved.

After returning to Canada and taking up his university work in Boston Bell carried on a great deal of investigation along the lines of helping deaf mutes, which has been one of his great life works. It was while following out this line of investigation that he produced the first telephone. It was no happy chance or lucky hit, but the result of patient, careful research along definite lines, carried out by a man thoroughly equipped for this task by training and inheritance.

It is hard for us to realize today that in the early years of men still only misdevised the telephone was non-existent. The invention is ordinarily dated from 1872, though it was not until 1876 that Dr. Bell made his first communication at the famous Philadelphia exposition. A company was organized to promote the new talking apparatus, and the rest is modern history. For a long time past Dr. Bell has been giving the credit for the many wonderful improvements and developments to others who have carried on the work he began, but the fact remains that it was he who blazed the way. He has universally been acknowledged as the inventor of the telephone, though Elisha Gray, of Chicago, was working on the same idea at the same time, and indeed filed an application for a patent at Washington only two hours later than Bell.

Today the telephone has spread practically over the civilized world.
It has not yet found its way into the homes of the people in Europe as it has in Canada and the United States, but its use is growing year by year.
In Canada about 750,000 telephones are in service, covering a mileage of approximately 2,000,000 miles. The Bell company alone, which perpetuates the name of the inventor, is serving over 400,000 instruments in Ontario and Quebec, the territory in which it is still operating. Here in the west the telephone systems are being operated as public utilities and in our own province the Alberta government telephone department has 51,000 installations on its list.

Harvesters Leave East

ers arrived in Winnipeg Monday night and western Quebec trains are scheduled for August 11 and 21, and for the western part of Ontario, August 14th and 25th.

was shown by E. T. Barnum together with Mercy Lavinia Warren, who was three inches shorter. We have seen a good many much smaller people within recent years.

Tom Thumb, after reaching thirty years of age took a sudden turn and, adding several inches to his stature. This was bad for himself; but he had by that time acquired quite a fortune. He was a good deal of a speculator, drank rather hard, and died in his early forties.

Mercy Lavinia Warren became Mrs.
Tom Thumb, the marriage of the distinction pair, promoted by the showman, being celebrated with much display for advertising purposes. At last accounts she is still living, at the age of nearly eighty years.

The society of dwarfs affords evidence of the fact that they are normal people, except in point of size.
They live as long as ordinary people, and a number of them are on record as having reached great ages.

The Red Cross Emblem

When the society of the Red Cross was founded in 1864 a convention was held in Geneva, Switzerland, for the purpose of organization. At this convention it was decided that a flag should be adopted for use on hospital buildings and that all persons connected with these hospitals should be identified with an arm badge. What to use as the emblem for the society was the question. It was proposed that a white flag be adopted with a red cross in the centre. This was a complaint to the country in which the convention was held—the flag of Switzerland being a white cross on a red ground.
The red cross therefore is just the reverse of the Swiss flag. Some people think that there is some religious significance attached to the red cross, but there is not. All the countries of the world, except Turkey, recognize the flag in its true non-sectarian significance, and the red cross is against the use of the cross on the flags under which they must serve and the red cross flags of Turkey are already not red crosses at all, but red crescents. But whether the emblem be a cross or a crescent the good work of the society goes on just the same, and the flag of the society is a welcome sight to those in distress.

Broad as the mighty seas,
Our lines harmonious tell.
From many a tribe and tongue,
United now we stand;

That we Thy ways may know,
And all unite as one.

Fall Cultivation

Fall cultivation includes discing or cultivating the land during or immediately after the heavy plowing and fall plowing. The objects of fall cultivation are to store and conserve the moisture, to germinate weed seeds, and to prepare land for seeding the following spring. In most districts of the prairie provinces, moisture is the limiting factor in crop production.
In many districts weeds take more moisture from the soil than the crop by surface evaporation, and almost as much as is used for the growth of crops. Hence any cultivation that will at the same time store up moisture and help to eradicate weeds is to be recommended. Over any period of five years or more it has been found that early seeded crops give decidedly heavier yields than late seeded, and also escape the danger of frost injury. Hence fall cultivation is important in farm management as every early prepared for seeding in the fall reduces the heavy pressure of spring work, particularly in this case in late spring.

To be effective, fall cultivation must be done early, during or immediately after harvest. The best method is to have the disc or cultivator follow immediately after the binder. If horse power for this is lacking, cultivate between the rows of stubs or as soon as the stubs have been removed. If the land is not cultivated "hot", air winds blowing over the practically bare and in many cases cracked open and cause very rapid evaporation, and weed seeds will germinate. Cultivation creates a mulch, fills up the cracks, prevents evaporation, and covers and germinates many weed seeds. Later if the land is fall plowed these weeds will be killed, and it will be found that the soil is moist and can be plowed with one horse less than had not cultivated. Try this out for yourself.

As ten inches of snow is required to make one inch of water the extra moisture stored in the early fall cultivation is a great asset.

As the soil is not cultivated "hot", it will be found that the soil is moist
and can be plowed with one horse
less than had not cultivated. Try this out for yourself.

THE PLAGUE OF PIMPLES
CAUSED BY BAD BLOOD

Bad blood is responsible for the pimples, blotches and other disfiguring marks that break out on the face and body.

There is a natural foe to bad blood, called Purishek Blood Bitter, which always cures, never fails, and is recommended by thousands to banish everything from the smallest pimple to the worst scurfous sore.

Mrs. G. E. Phillips, Stokeland, N.
S., writes: "I suffered about a year with my face; it was just covered with pimples and blackheads. I used all kinds of creams and different medicines, but none of them seemed to help me. My home doctor told me the severe case I had, and I had to try a holy tal-ismen to give Purishek Blood Bitter a trial. I got a bottle and it helped me, and by the time I had taken three bottles I hadn't a pimple or my face can be highly recommended. Purishek Blood Bitter is to any one who is troubled with pimples."

Taking Time to Think It Over

A TRAGEDY IN REAL LIFE

A MUTUAL LIFE insurance agent urged a certain man to sign an application for $5000 insurance protection. The man replied "Give me Sunday to think it over." Instead of thinking it over on Sunday, the young man went away on a motorcycle trip and meeting with an accident, lost his life.

Leaving the signing of the application 48 hours cost his dependent relatives $5000, a sum which would have been a wonderful blessing to them.

Life is just as uncertain during days of procrastination as later. Insure now, and do not make your family take chances for another day.

Mutual Life Policies afford protection at mini-

Health of Dairy Cattle

If dairymen in particular, and farmers generally, would know how to have healthy cattle, they should lose no time in sending to the Publications branch, Ottawa, for a copy of recently issued Pamphlet No. 16, of the Dominion department of agriculture, prepared under the immediate supervision of the Veterinary Director General. It contains 55 definite questions and 55 explicit answers couched in plain, straightforward language, regarding the accredited herd system, and the identification, prevention and eradication of tuberculosis; also relative to the requirements of inspection and provision for official inspection and testing. The primary principle for the prevention of tuberculosis, or for that matter, any other disease of livestock is cleanliness, accompanied by free ventilation and plenty of light and the first element in sanitation is cleanliness. That this is a prime consideration is indicated by the statement that the officially appointed inspector will not undertake to test a herd for tuberculosis until he is assured by personal observation that the premises are clean and sanitary. Besides details of the provisions made for government testing, explanations are given in the question and answer form regarding a variety of matters, including municipal testing and the classification of dairies, testing by private practitioners with departmental supplied tuberculin, and the ways in which swine and poultry are liable to become infected with tuberculosis.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlson left on Saturday on a visit to the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steinacher, at Payzall, Wash., and other friends across the line. They were accompanied by the family.

Sam Anderson, of the Star Stone recovery department, was successful in winning one of the prizes offered for the best window display of Gold Dust. The competition was open to the whole of Canada and the United States.

The Wetaskiwin district appears to be unfortunate this season in the matter of moisture. Heavy rains have fallen in many parts of the province during the past week, but this community did not receive the "soaker" it needs so badly.

We have been informed that a young man, who spent Sunday last at Pigeon Lake, had a number of articles stolen from his clothes while he was in swimming. This should be a warning to others to see that everything is safe while at the lake.

Judge Jackson of Lethbridge is spending part of his vacation in the district, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Root. He is accompanied by Mrs. Jackson. They were former residents of Ponoka, and they have many old time friends in this community.

The first wheat cutting in this district was done on Tuesday, when the binder commenced work on E. A. Holbrook's farm, south of the city. Mr. Holbrook is fortunate in having a very good crop this year, it being estimated that it will go thirty bushels to the acre.

W. O. Torgerson was in Calgary last week, when arrangements were made by the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. for his transfer to Magrath, Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Torgerson left on Tuesday for their new home taking with them the best best wishes of their many friends in this community. Mr. Torgerson will be greatly missed in sport circles, as he was the manager of the Wetaskiwin ball team and an enthusiastic curler.

Three local auto racers, Chas. Nelson, Ted Reynolds and Ray Stevens, have been busy this week tuning up their cars for the auto races in Edmonton on Saturday. Charlie is driving a valve-in-head Ford, Ted has a valve-in-head of his own design and makes on his old '68 Ford, and Ray is tuning up the old Oakland which was raced here several years ago. Quite a number of the fans have signified their intention of taking the trip to the Capital to see the sport.

Mysterious Russia

In Russia men are starving, and starving are their wives; there are no scraps for saving when dinner time arrives. The kids in vain are calling for liverwurst and pie; the vultures see them falling and tear them when they die. These facts I gain by reading a book just from the press; I see poor Russia bleeding, and weep in my distress. But here's a volume printed a few brief days ago, and in this book it's stated that Russia has no war. The people eat and drink, have cakes and pie and bread, and laugh at any smarmy who says they are not fed. The yarn that Russia suffers is reckless and untrue. The speaker is abroad by day and who have an axe to grind. They have it in for Trotsky and Lenin's name they hate, and they are writing raskat at quite a vicious rate.
